

THE CARROLL FAMILY FOUNDATION LIVER HUB

The Carroll Family Foundation (CFF), the nonprofit organization founded by professional athlete and liver awareness advocate DeMarre Carroll is excited to introduce the CFF Liver Hub, a web-based platform where youth can access information to learn more about the liver, its function, healthy habits and more. All available in a kid-friendly, interactive setting to further educate youth on how to care for their liver.

Carroll, who was diagnosed with liver disease after completing his senior season at the University of Missouri in 2009, is the first NBA athlete known to play with liver disease. He and his wife Iesha founded The Carroll Family Foundation in 2015 with the goal of providing more education and raising awareness about the importance of the liver – focusing on liver health in youth.

The Carroll Family Foundation recognizes that many people are not knowledgeable about liver disease and how it affects their bodies and lives. “Too few individuals know how to take care of their liver, and too few can identify the basic functions of the liver,” noted Iesha Carroll, CFF’s executive director. “It is imperative that CFF reach school-age youth through our educational initiatives. The Liver Hub can be instrumental in helping them live a longer life with a healthy liver through education.”

The CFF Liver Hub provides information on the function, use and importance of the liver to support school-age youth in their development of science knowledge and skills, and features child-friendly educational quizzes and other interactive elements to increase the user experience while educating. The Foundation is partnering with organizations nationwide to make the Liver Hub available to students ages 5-18.
